ANGELS IN AMERICA, PART ONE: MILLENNIUM APPROACHES SYNOPSIS

New York City in 1985, at the height of the AIDS crisis. After the funeral of Louis’ grandmother, Prior Walter – Louis’ boyfriend – tells him that he has contracted HIV. That same day, legendary Republican lawyer and power-player Ray Cohn offers Joe Pitt, a young Mormon law clerk, a prestigious job in Washington. Joe wants to take the job but refuses to formally accept until he’s talked over it with his wife Harper. But Harper does not want to move to Washington.

The two couples’ fates quickly become intertwined: Joe stumbles upon Louis crying in the bathroom of the courthouse where he works, and they strike up an unlikely friendship. Harper and Prior also meet, in a fantastical mutual dream sequence in which Prior, operating on the “threshold of revelation,” reveals to Harper that her husband is a closeted gay man. Harper confronts Joe, who denies it. As they argue, Louis tells Prior that he’s not sure he can handle the stress and fear of caring for Prior when he’s sick.

When Roy Cohn is at an appointment with his doctor, he learns that he has been diagnosed with AIDS. Roy thundered that he has nothing in common with gays – AIDS is a disease of homosexuals, whereas he has “liver cancer.” Henry urges him to use his clout to obtain AZT, an experimental new AIDS drug.

Both Prior’s illness and Harper’s torments grow worse. Louis strays from Prior’s bedside to seek anonymous sex in Central Park at night. Fortunately, Prior has a more reliable caretaker in Belize. Prior confesses that he has been hearing a wonderful and mysterious voice, telling him she is a messenger who will soon arrive. As the days pass, Louis and Joe grow closer. Finally, a drunk Joe telephones his mother in Salt Lake City to tell her that he is gay. Joe then tells Harper that he’s gay as Louis tells Prior he is moving out.

One night, Prior is awakened by the vision of two of his ancestors who tell him they have come to prepare the way for the unseen messenger. Joe tells Roy that he cannot accept his offer. Roy explodes. Roy tells Joe that his greatest achievement was intervening in the 1950s espionage trial of Ethel Rosenberg, guaranteeing her execution. Joe leaves, and the ghost of Ethel herself appears. In the climax of Part One, Prior’s prophetic visions culminate in the appearance of an Angel who crashes through the roof of his apartment and proclaims, “The Great Work begins.”

Roy Marcus Cohn (February 27, 1927-August 2, 1986) was a high-powered American attorney who practiced law for nearly forty years. He lived in New York City where he represented many of the city’s high powered individuals. Cohn served as Senator Joseph McCarthy’s chief council during the investigations into Communist activities. His rise to fame was also due to his involvement in the Army-McCarthy Hearings, as well as the espionage trial of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. He never publicly admitted he was homosexual, but it has been confirmed he carried on relationships with many men. Cohn died of AIDS in Bethesda, Maryland.

Ethel Greenglass Rosenberg (September 25, 1915-June 19, 1953) was accused of passing atomic secrets to the Soviet Union with her husband, Julius Rosenberg. They were found guilty and executed in the electric chair on June 19, 1953. Roy Cohn was on the prosecution team and pushed for the death sentence.

In January, I sat in The Theatre School lobby crowded with students, faculty, and staff, as we all watched the televised Inauguration Ceremonies together. As Richard Blanco stepped to the podium and was introduced, a cheer broke out in the room to celebrate him, a young Cuban immigrant who was the first openly gay poet to write for the event. As I listened to the poem, I realized that years after Perestroika was written, this beautiful young man was still in touch with everything that Perestroika seeks to say. For space considerations, I can only include a cutting of the poem. I urge you to find the entire thing, and read it when you read your faith and hope for the world is gone.

One sun rose on us today, kindled over our shores, peaking over the Smokies, greeting the faces of the Great Lakes, spreading a simple truth across the Great Plains, then charging across the Rockies. One light, waking up rooftops, under each one, a story across the Great Plains, then charging across the Rockies. peeking over the Smokies, greeting the faces.

We head home: through the gloss of rain or weight of snow, or the plump blush of dusk, but always—home, always under one sky, our sky. And always one moon like a silent drum tapping on every rooftop and every window of one country—all of us—facing the stars hope—a new constellation waiting for us to map it, waiting for us to name it—together.—

—Richard Blanco, “One Today”

~Jane Drake Brody

DRAMATURG’S NOTE

Perestroika: Russian. Literally, “restructuring.’

This play takes place in turbulent 1986 New York City; encompasses massive political and social issues, and at times seems to be a call to political action. But it is not. The play is not about Democrats or Republicans, Communists or Capitalists, gay or straight, infected or not infected. The play is about people. It is about you and me. It is about human beings regardless of race, gender, political or economic power, sexuality, or HIV-status. The play cannot be seen as simply a call for reform to the conservative political agenda of the United States that came about in age of Reagan. Because before anyone can begin to restructure America, or the world, there is another task to be accomplished; we must restructure ourselves first, which is the greatest and most grueling task of all. We must rip at the seams of our souls, destroy what defines us, and emerge from the settling dust reborn, prepared to create the world anew.

Each character begins at the end of a long road – and that road is that path to reconstruction. Throughout their fantastic journeys they either grow a new skin and create a new means of survival or they resist, wither, and die. When you lose everything even your own skin, will you restructure, regrow, and move forward? Or will you remain static and slowly die? Existence can either be progress or stasis. One is life, and one is death. Progress is painful, but there is a sense of benediction. There is hope for the future. It is up to us.

If we choose to enact perestroika in our lives when it is most needed, each of us has the potential to create something momentous. Once we are able to restructure ourselves, we will gain the power to restructure our communities, our country, and the world. As Prior says in the Epilogue, “You are fabulous creatures, each and every one. And I bless you. More Life. The Great Work Begins.”

Mission Statement
The Theatre School at DePaul University educates, trains, and inspires students of theatre in a conservatory setting that is rigorous, disciplined, culturally diverse and that strives for the highest level of professional skill and artistry.

A commitment to diversity and equality in education is central to our mission. As an integral part of the training, The Theatre School produces public programs and performances from a wide repertoire of classic, contemporary and original plays that challenge, entertain, and stimulate the imagination. We seek to enhance the intellectual and cultural life of our university community, our city and the profession. For admissions information, telephone (773) 325-7999 or 1-800-4-DEPAUL.

Chicago Playworks for Families and Young Audiences
Chicago Playworks offers a live theatre experience to students, teachers and parents in the Chicago metropolitan area. It is our mission to provide theatre for children that reflects their experiences in a contemporary, multi-ethnic, urban environment.

Founded as the Goodman Children’s Theatre in 1925, Chicago Playworks is the city’s oldest continuously operating children’s theatre. It has been the first theatre experience for audiences of Chicago’s young people for more than seven decades and was one of the first major theatres for children in the United States. In 1997 and again in 2003, Chicago Playworks was honored by the Illinois Theatre Association with the Children’s Theatre Division Award, for its outstanding long-term contribution to children’s theatre. In 1980, Chicago Playworks was awarded the prestigious Sara Spencer Award by the Children’s Theatre Association of America (now the American Alliance for Theatre and Education).

Chicago Playworks is a vital aspect of the training at The Theatre School at DePaul University. Students gain pre-professional experience in an extended run before a most demanding and appreciative audience. Chicago Playworks presents three unique productions to more than 35,000 young people each season and has entertained more than 1 million schoolchildren and families since 1925.

The Theatre School Showcase
Contemporary Plays and Classics
Presenting diverse and exciting productions, The Theatre School Showcase blends imagination and cultural impact with three plays, and rounds-out the season with a fourth production featuring the graduating MFA in Acting candidates. The Theatre School Showcase offers a unique opportunity to see tomorrow’s industry leaders today, by introducing the raw creativity and dedicated collaborations of artists at the beginning of their careers. Their work is powerful, imaginative, and new.

Merle Reskin Theatre
Celebrating a century of performances, the Merle Reskin Theatre was designed by Chicago architects Marshall and Fox, and built as the Blackstone Theatre in 1910. The stone façade and mansard roof of the Beaux-Arts style building have been modified only slightly over the years. The interior finish of French walnut and gold was designed by Plamondon & Tetze to give the appearance of a European opera house. Prior to DePaul’s purchase of the theatre in 1988, it had been home to vaudeville, the Federal Theatre Project and the touring productions of the Shubert Organization. The Theatre School brings an audience of more than 35,000 people to the theatre each season.
