DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Many of us have a story within us of leaving home and making a new life in a new place, a new world. While our stories may not be exactly like Gabi's or the Castillo family's, as Ms. Chan says, we all have “this incredible history” inside of us.

During the first rehearsal for Augusta and Noble, members of the cast, crew and production team shared our family histories. “Did your family immigrate to the United States? When? How?” Ultimately, it came down to how this history makes us who we are today. Each of us, as individuals, have completely unique and special stories of how our families came to be here. Knowing this story helps us know who we are.

Think of your own history — did you immigrate to the United States? Or perhaps your parents did? Or your grandparents? Even farther back in your family tree? Immigrating to another country requires taking a huge and challenging step. The journey can be frightening and fraught with obstacles, some of them dangerous.

During times of struggle, our families can be the rock that we hold onto. While growing up requires that we each make challenging journeys on our own, our families — and even perhaps the spirits of our ancestors! — can hold us up through the darkest times.

All of us have a story to share about our home and the struggles our family has been through. We are excited to share this story of strength, challenge, unity, and defying all odds with you.

~Lisa Portes, Director;
Melanie Queponds, MFA Assistant Director

DRAMATURGY NOTE

On September 5, 2017, our country was pulled in different directions when our current administration announced the phasing out of the program Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA). About 800,000 people and their families are now at risk and are concerned for their future if DACA is terminated. By the time you are reading this, the circumstances might be different because we live in a time where policies are changing rapidly and unexpectedly.

DACA is a program, introduced by President Barack Obama in 2012, that protects undocumented immigrants who came to the United States as children from deportation. The children who benefit from this program are called Dreamers. Since the program began five years ago, about 800,000 people’s lives have been transformed. Many Dreamers have expressed that they are much more than a statistic; they’re people who you interact with on a daily basis. They are your friends, your neighbors, and peers. And they all have a story to tell. DACA provides Dreamers the ability to apply for a renewable two-year Visa, which permits them to work legally in the United States. Applicants must be in school, have a high school diploma or be a military veteran.

In Augusta and Noble, Gabi dreams about her family’s history — something that has been hidden from her. Through her dreams, she discovers how her parents came to live in Chicago and the sacrifices they made in order for her and Jesus to have a better life filled with possibility and optimism. Gabi doesn’t just dream about her past, she’s a Dreamer who has aspirations about her future like studying, going to college, and getting a good job. Like many Dreamers, Gabi has her roots planted in the United States. Her home is at the corner of Augusta and Noble in West Town.

If DACA were to cease, Dreamers would be forced to live in a country they do not know because they have never lived there; the United States is the only place they’ve ever... called home. Deporting these young people and sending them to a place they’ve never known is not just a repercussion for Dreamers, it’s also just one for the United States. According to CNBC, without DACA, the United States would lose thousands of doctors, lawyers, and students, resulting in a cost of about $400 billion and about 650,000 jobs. Looking ahead at the unforeseeable future, Congress has until March 5, 2018, to pass the DREAM Act, a law aimed to provide the Dreamers permanent residency and security in the United States, or come up with alternative legislation that keeps these young people out of limbo. The question is – will the Dreamers dreams become a reality?

MISSION STATEMENT

The Theatre School at DePaul University educates, trains, and inspires students of theatre in a conservatory setting that is rigorous, disciplined, culturally diverse and that strives for the highest level of professional skill and artistry.

A commitment to diversity and equality in education is central to our mission. As an integral part of the training, The Theatre School produces public programs and performances from a wide repertoire of classic, contemporary, and original plays that challenge, entertain, and stimulate the imagination. We seek to enhance the intellectual and cultural life of our university community, our city, and the profession. For admissions information, telephone (773) 325-7999 or 1-800-4-DEPAUL.

CHICAGO PLAYWORKS FOR FAMILIES AND YOUNG AUDIENCES

Chicago Playworks offers a live theatre experience to students, teachers and parents in the Chicago metropolitan area. It is our mission to provide theatre for children that reflects their experiences in a contemporary, multi-ethnic, urban environment.

Founded as the Goodman Children’s Theatre in 1925, Chicago Playworks is the city’s oldest continuously operating children’s theatre. It has been the first theatre experience for audiences of Chicago’s young people for more than seven decades and was one of the first major theatres for children in the United States. In 1997 and again in 2003, Chicago Playworks was honored by the Illinois Theatre Association with the Children’s Theatre Division Award, for its outstanding long-term contribution to children’s theatre. In 1980, Chicago Playworks was awarded the prestigious Sara Spencer Award by the Children’s Theatre Association of America (now the American Alliance for Theatre and Education).

Chicago Playworks is a vital aspect of the training at The Theatre School at DePaul University. Students gain pre-professional experience in an extended run before a most demanding and appreciative audience. Chicago Playworks presents three unique productions to more than 35,000 young people each season and has entertained more than 1,000,000 schoolchildren and families since 1925.

HISTORY

The Theatre School at DePaul University was founded as the Goodman School of Drama in 1925, made possible by a gift of $250,000 from William and Erna Goodman to the Art Institute of Chicago. The gift was in memory of their son, Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, a playwright. Kenneth dreamed about opening a theatre that combined a repertory company with a dramatic arts school, where classes would be taught by professional artists and actors.

In 1975 the trustees of the Art Institute of Chicago voted to phase out the Goodman School of Drama over a three-year period. Luckily, DePaul University stepped in and embraced the Goodman School of Drama to keep alive a tradition of dramatic programming. DePaul’s first theatre, The College Theatre, opened on the Lincoln Park Campus in 1907.

Throughout the years, The Theatre School at DePaul University has grown in reputation and stature. Our new home at Fullerton and Racine opened in September 2013 and was designed by the internationally renowned architect César Pelli and his firm Pelli Clarke Pelli Architects.
